

Dress-Up-Week Begins Today In The Local Stores--See The Displays

Other Spring fashions have come and gone, but no other Spring brought so many lovely new clothes for women to wear. Sunshine yellow, meditative grey, Bolshoi red, ingenious pink, April green, weedy brown and conventional navy are the conversational colors and what they say will be found in the local stores this week when the annual Spring Dress-Up Week is observed, starting at 5:30 this evening and lasting until Saturday night.

New frocks, waists, suits, and hats, this season are so cleverly designed, that one can wear them long after Spring turns into Summer. Many new creations, copies of the latest styles set by fashion experts of Paris and Fifth Avenue New York, have been arranged in most attractive exhibits in the local stores and display windows. Tonight, the public will have a chance to go "window shopping" and view the many tempting exhibits prepared by the city's window artists. Tomorrow, "Just a love of the beautiful" is all one will need to gain admission to the stores where Spring exhibits are sure to attract attention of Mayday.

Portsmouth's annual Spring Dress-Up Week is an event of untold inspiration. Displays in full season variety are complete in the stores and windows. The influence of the Orient is revealed in many of the striking patterns. Color is found in generous quantities. The fabrics for Spring are not only the most distinctive in novelty but combine a happy adaptability to every mood of Fashion.

With simplicity still the keynote of fashion, the fabric becomes of prime importance. Silk is predominant. Silks offer a diversity of styles.

Although the styles for women always hold first place the men and young people are not to be overlooked. For men, there are new Spring tags, new suits and sportswear for Spring wear. Smart styles, attractive material and workmanship.

The home is embraced in the dress-up movement. New furniture, new draperies, new furnishings—all are to be found on display in local furniture stores. All the latest designs in period furniture are on display. Many stores are co-operating in making Dress-Up Week a success.

The Retailers' Division of the Chamber of Commerce is co-operating in staging this Spring Dress-Up Week. No prize for the best window displays are to be given. Merchants have beautiful exhibits in their stores that are merely reflected by the window displays. The public is cordially invited to view the exhibits throughout the week.

Don't Hey Veto The Anglers License

COLUMBUS, O., March 6.—(By the Associated Press)—Governor Donahy today vetoed the fisherman's license bill on the grounds that it would not be fair to the great mass of the people who "throw a line into the creek" now and then but who don't make fishing a steady diversion. Anyone, he pointed out, who even fished for a few minutes would be violating the law if he did not have a license.

In his veto message to the legislature, Governor Donahy declared that from "rimo immemorial, fishing has been the poor man's sport," and that it would be unfair to charge a father and mother $1.20 (fifty cents for license and 70 cents recording fee) for the privilege of taking their children to a stream for a few hours' fishing, not to mention the trouble of going to the county clerk's office to obtain the license.

"I am sure we will all agree," said the governor, "that it is the tantalizing, little things that serve to bring governmental activities into contempt."

The governor also said he disapproved the bill because it prohibited a farmer from free fishing from the banks of his own streams unless he permitted the public also to fish there. He also asserted that if it is to be the policy of the state to license fishermen as a means of raising funds for fish propagation, the policy should be preceded by a policy of clearing the streams of pollution in order that fish may survive.

Girl Winning Hard Fight Against Dual Personality

COLUMBUS, O., March 6.—(By the United Press)—Bernice Redick, 20, whose strange development of a dual personality, has puzzled psychiatrists for two years, is winning her fight, Ohio State University Hospital attendants declared today.

Miss Redick is fighting to oust the personality of a four-year-old child, which since the former was 18 years old, has at frequent intervals occupied her body.

The child personality known only as "Polly" will die, says Dr. H. H. Goddard, of the University Psychology Department, if Bernice's reserve of nervous energy holds out.

If it does not, both personalities probably will perish.

The strain of the slender body, which both personalities are striving to occupy, may prove over-taxing.

The case is one of the strangest in the history of abnormal psychology.

Bernice Redick, a highly sensitive and nervous school girl, developed the "Polly" personality at the age of 18.

One day in everything except stature, she changed into a chattering child of four years.

She did not understand why she wanted to play with dolls and have a toy carpet sweeper.

In a short time the Bernice personality returned.

So far as she knew she had merely had a childish dream. Bernice knew nothing of "Polly" and when "Polly" inhabited the body she knew nothing of Bernice.

The state welfare department took her case in hand and in a few months announced that "Polly" had been killed and that Miss Bernice had been cured.

She was given a clerical position, but in a few weeks the work proved too heavy and "Polly" returned.

The University Psychiatric department declared she is winning on the strength of hospital records, which show the "Polly" personality returning with less frequency.

Only yesterday, however, a nurse visited Miss Redick for more than an hour. The nurse left the room and returned in a few minutes to find her patient sitting on the floor crying because she "couldn't go out and play."

It was the first recurrence of "Polly" in more than a week.

Harry A. Wallerstein Senator T.H. Caraway

United States Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway, Democrat, of Arkansas, whose poundage would put him in the heavyweight class, may be defendant in a suit contemplated by Harry A. Wallerstein, of Washington. Following a quarrel between the two on a street car, Caraway wrecked a perfectly good umbrella on Wallerstein's face and shoulders. Wallerstein, former service man, claims he brushed Caraway accidentally. Caraway alleges Wallerstein kept pulling the Senator's hat over his face. Wallerstein is 5 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 125 pounds.

Open Drive On Vice Dens In Chicago

CHICAGO, March 6.—(By the Associated Press)—Stamping out commercialized vice under what is said to be the most drastic police order ever drawn in Chicago, may claim the entire attention of 3,000 of the city's available 4,575 patrolmen.

Charles C. Fitzmorris, chief of police, last night directed police captains to place uniformed men at the front and back doors of every known disorderly house in Chicago. To form leaders have asserted that more than 500 such places are operating here.

Chief Fitzmorris refused to comment on the order other than to say that it "speaks for itself."

At Chief Fitzmorris' office it was said the order was decided on after several conferences. It was asserted by the chief's counselors that "many chiefs have been broken on the rocks of disorderly houses and gambling," and that Fitzmorris had decided to give the "reformers" what they insist on having.

Chief Fitzmorris' stand has been that Chicago was as orderly as it "can be without turning the whole police force loose on vice and letting the criminals run wild."

Chief Justice McKinley said that "if the chief sees fit to assign all 4,500 patrolmen to guard one fact that is his responsibility. If crime becomes rampant, as the result of his order, the public still will hold him responsible."

"On the other hand, if it is the chief's intention to co-operate in a sane and sensible manner, with the courts and the better element of the city to stamp out dens where the habitués of criminals he deserves, and should receive the commendation of the public."

New Idea In Flying

NEW YORK, March 6.—(By the Associated Press)—The "Levcon", the newest idea in flying is to be tried out today by officers at Mitchell Field, L. I., who look upon the experiment as one of the most hazardous undertakings upon which an aviator ever has embarked. Officers of the field expect that their test will go far to disclose the feasibility of launching and landing small airplanes from and on larger, heavier-than-air machines or on dirigibles.

If the experiment is successful, post officers expect it to lead to developments which eventually will result in equipping every bombing plane with smaller planes of superior speed, which in warfare can be employed as a protective weapon and for observation over a wide area with small chance of detection.

Harding Mentally And Physically Tired

ENROUTE TO FLORIDA WITH PRESIDENT HARDING, March 6.—Two years ago Warren G. Harding went to Florida to prepare himself for the presidency; today he goes there to escape for a time at last the arduous tasks of executive office.

Behind him he leaves an atmosphere of fatigue, an exhausted officialdom, for, as usual, everything was left to the last moment by congress and the last ten days have been filled with panicky haste. Bills that needed weeks of careful consideration were given superficial attention by congress in a mad rush to finish by the statutory hour. Farm credit legislation, which might well have occupied a whole session by itself, was passed in a few days. And the net result of it all is to place upon the executive and his cabinet officers the responsibility of wisely executing the laws that are made and seeing to it that unwise provisions are kept inoperative till congress can come back to correct defects.

Executive's Burdens Added To That process is exactly what Mr. Harding complains about. Every day in every way, every week and every month, congress adds to the burdens of the executive, he has told callers in recent weeks. So it is no wonder that he discourages all talk of a special session before December. It would take a political earthquake or (Continued on Page Nine)

Harding Sees No Reason For Delay In Settlement Of Shopmen's Strike

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(By the Associated Press)—President Harding has informed officials of the railway shop crafts that he can see no "adequate question of principle" which warrants a further delay in settlement in all districts of last summer's shopmen's strike.

In a letter written just before he left Washington for Florida and made public today at the White House the president declared that "a minority of the interests involved" by their refusal to settle were "largely responsible" for interrupted coal deliveries and other unsatisfactory railway conditions in certain parts of the country.

The president's letter was in response to one from Stephen B. Conroy, secretary of the federated shopmen, Central Railroad of New Jersey, and said in part:

"It is an occasion of intense regret that the settlement of the shop crafts strike which has been effected on the larger part of the railroad systems and the mileage of the country, has not been found possible on all the lines. I do not find myself able to discern any adequate question of principle which could justify a minority of interests involved in this distressing situation in refusing to make settlements similar to those which have been made by the majority. The information which reaches me brings the conviction that continued failure to make settlement is largely responsible for unfortunate conditions as to railroad movements in some areas and for interrupted deliveries of coal during the winter, with resultant suffering to many communities and much demoralization to industry. It is a situation which seems certain to become more serious unless effective measures are found for the early amelioration."

The Central of New Jersey, shopmen constitute one of the groups which yet have not effected a settlement of the strike.

Faces Lions For Sister

LONDON, March 6.—(By the Associated Press)—The happiest, proudest boy in London today is fifteen-year-old Alfred Garcia, the son of an omnibus conductor.

Alfred recently was offered 50 pounds if he would enter the cage of circus lions with the trainer. For two days the boy considered the offer, his thoughts constantly turning to the thirteen-year-old crippled sister who would be benefitted immeasurably by the operation the money would make possible.

"Lions or no lions, I'll do it," he decided, and engaged a first rate surgeon. Then he fulfilled his part of the bargain.

The surgeon, however, learned of the circumstances and insisted upon giving his service without charge, whereupon Alfred promptly turned over the 50 pounds to his sister.

Dr. Mayer was born at Enkenbach, Bavaria, November 18, 1874.

"Whom do men say that I am?" Mark 8:27.

"The life of Jesus is a truth that cannot be demonstrated to a man whose heart is not right towards God."

MEDITATION: Jesus did not tell his disciples at first his aim in life but allowed his life to show what manner of man he was. If we are like him we do not need to tell it. People know far more about our real nature than we sometimes think they do.

HYMN: O Love that wilt not let me go, I rest my weary soul in thee; I give thee back the life I owe, That in thine ocean depths its flow May richer, fuller be.

PRAYER: O God, by whom the meek are guided in judgment, and light riseth up in darkness for the godly; grant us, in all our doubts and uncertainties, the grace to ask what thou wouldst have us to do; that the spirit of wisdom may save us from all false choices, and that in thy light we may see light, and in thy straight path may not stumble; through Jesus Christ, our Lord, Amen.

Lon Chaney "Oliver Twist" IS HAILED AS TRUE SCREEN MASTERPIECE AT EASTLAND TONIGHT

Jackie Coogan Exels As Boy Who Asks For More

A great many of the patrons of the Eastland Theatre yesterday went to enjoy a screened series of a most gifted and adorable boy. They remained to marvel at the genius of antics performed by the screen's real actor, to whom comedy is but one of many forms of expression. Many went hopped by their love for the lad whose image they have watched so many times projected on the silver sheet. They remained to thrill in the presence of a tiny tragedian. Jackie Coogan was the boy. The play was Frank Lloyd's adaptation of Charles Dickens' "Oliver Twist" presented as a First National Attraction.

It cannot be said that any novel of the length of "Oliver Twist" can be set forth either on stage or screen and remain in perfect agreement with the original; but, while some will wish that this or that episode had been chosen from the book rather than what is filmed, it must be conceded that Mr. Lloyd took with a logical hand, those portions of the novel that lent themselves best to the medium of the screen and were most readily welded together into a plot paralleling that told by Dickens—the story of how Monks first tried to destroy the soul of Oliver and then plotted to destroy his life.

Lon Chaney's performance of the role of Fagin will add laurels even to that much and honorably bodied actor. Many will claim it to be his most vivid and imaginative creation. Gladys Brockwell signals her return to the screen by a notable performance of the role of Nancy. With most delicate gradations she shows the rehabilitation of a soul until at last she makes the supreme sacrifice of her life for another.

Bill Sikes with powerful strokes, Lionel Belmore's Mr. Brownlow was a benign but masculine and lovable soul; and all the rest in the great cast deserve more than the mere mention of their names and the roles they played. Each was a conscientious performance, co-ordinated and controlled by the genius of Frank Lloyd, who in "Oliver Twist" reveals more of subtlety than in any other work of his, but no less of power, and who thus verifies his right to stand in the position assigned him—in the very front rank of the world's greatest directors.

MAY BUILD ROUNDHOUSE
IRONTON, March 6.—That a new eighteen-stall round-house is planned by the C. & O. at Russell, Ky., within the near future is said to be definitely known and it is believed that the plans for the addition are already completed. The railway company has spent a considerable sum in the enlargement of the Russell yards and its equipment, but the shops there are said to be inadequate so that the new round house is absolutely necessary to care for the tremendous business that is done in the Russell terminal, one of the greatest rail centers in the country.

Within the past few weeks groups of officials of the C. & O. have conducted inspections of the company property and the ground has been gone over thoroughly.

The proposed new round house would almost double the capacity of the shops, as the present round house has 22 stalls and the number of shop employees would also be increased to about half.

FINDS HOUSEWORK EASY AFTER REGAINING HEALTH

MRS. MARY F. FAIRCHILD, COLUMBUS, OHIO

Aged Lady Is Now Strong and Well After Taking Ka-di-ok for a Few Weeks.

Mrs. Mary F. Fairchild, an aged lady living at 143 Clarendon avenue, Columbus, Ohio, writes: "I suffered from liver and kidney trouble, was very nervous and could not sleep at night and could not get myself to eat a good meal as I had no appetite at all. Having seen several advertisements in the newspapers containing statements from people whom I personally knew, who had been benefited by taking Ka-di-ok, I concluded to try it. I am frank to say that Ka-di-ok helped me after taking the first few doses. Until recently I could hardly stand on my feet. I am now doing my own laundry work, besides running the house. I am getting stronger right along and recommended Ka-di-ok to any one requiring a medicine to build up their system. I would not be without a bottle of Ka-di-ok under any consideration."

Ka-di-ok will prove invaluable to persons suffering from the after effects of influenza, the infirmities of age, or to all persons requiring a remedy to aid in building up their system. Get a bottle today from your nearest drug store; it cannot fail to help you.

Ka-di-ok can be had in Portsmouth at Fisher & Streich Drug Store. —Advertisement.

Auto Plunges Into Creek

Ray Wiseman, 18, and Russell Leonard, 22, had a thrilling experience Sunday afternoon when the radius rod on the machine in which they were riding broke, causing the car to leave the Duck Run pike and plunge down a steep embankment, landing in the creek bed in about 18 inches of water. Wiseman suffered three broken ribs.

Leonard managed to crawl out through a door but Wiseman, who had been driving, was pinned under the car and he was saved from drowning by his companion and Earl Crabtree, who was nearby. They both live at Duck Run and were on their way home when the accident occurred.

No Trouble to Keep Skin Free From Hairs

(The Modern Beauty)
There is no need for any woman to countenance superfluous hairs, because with a paste made by mixing some powdered delectate with water it is easy to get rid of them. The paste is applied for 2 to 3 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed. This treatment will rid the skin of hair without leaving a blemish, but care should be taken to see that you get real delectate. Mix fresh as wanted.—Advertisement.

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

BRONCHITIS

VICKS VAPORUB
Over 17 Million Jars Used Yearly

What is her address. Where can I get a picture of her. How much do I send. Now Dolly, I have had blood and pimples and blackheads are on my face and neck. I have been getting massages for the past seven years, but they don't help very much. What kind of blood medicine would you advise me to get. I hope it is good. Now for the blackheads and pimples. What kind of medicine is best for them.

Mary Miles Minter is not married as yet, but she has been reported engaged several times. You can get a picture by sending 25 cents to her address in Los Angeles or Hollywood, California. If you have had blood, no outside remedy will cure your pimples, so the best thing you can do is to consult a physician, take internal treatment for awhile. After you do that or while you are doing it, you might use the following wash for pimples: Equal parts of glycerine and water. Stir into this powdered sulphur (flower of sulphur). Rub this on your face at night and wash off in the morning with soap and water, adding a few drops of ammonia. For black heads you might use 26 grains of sub-carbonate of soda, eight ounces of distilled water, six grains of essence of roses. Mix and apply with a small sponge after each ablution, using general friction, always upward. The black head may be the roots of the hairs that are often visible on some men's faces.

Dear Miss Wise—Will you kindly give me the names of the different steel mills and electrical works located in different parts of Canada. Your kindness will be appreciated.

It would be impossible to answer this question without knowing in what cities you were interested in, as Canada is larger in area than the United States, and I haven't the time and space to tell you the industrial conditions of each city. Would advise you to write to United States Consul General John G. Foster, at Montreal, or to James Alexander Robb, Minister of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa, and ask them for this information, but state your question more definitely, and enclose a stamp for reply.

Dear Miss Wise—If a person is a resident of this city can they go to another town and secure a license and get married if both are of age, or will they have to get the license here and take it along.

You can get a license in Ironton, Caledonia, Huntington, or most any place in Kentucky. If you are of age. However, the best place to get one is at the local court house. They'll treat you right down there, so don't be afraid of them.

A DEAR FRIEND.
I don't think the girl has done anything to be alarmed over. And if the only fault the man has, is going with another girl, there is nothing wrong about that. The girl you are writing about is too young to get married, and I think it a good idea for the man to go with other girls so that she will not think he is going to marry her. If you and the girl's mother are camping on her trail, I think she will get along all right without any advice from me.

A Delight

That millions have discovered
Whiter, cleaner, safer teeth

Look about you—note the prettier teeth you see. Note how people smile to show them.

Think what added beauty those pearly teeth have brought.

Millions now clean teeth in a new way. You will use it when you know. This is to offer a ten-day test so you may find it out.

That dingy film

Teeth are coated with a dingy film—that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms cloudy coats. Tartar is based on film. That's why teeth lose luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid.

It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. That's why tooth troubles were almost universal.

Germis breed by millions in film. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea, now so alarmingly common.

So dental science sought for film combatants, and eventually found two. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created, based

Avoid Harmful Grit
Pepsodent curdles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

on modern research. Those two great film destroyers were embodied in it.

That tooth paste is called Pepsodent. Now it has come into world-wide use, largely by dental advice.

Other effects

Pepsodent also multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Those are vital tooth protectors. Soapy tooth pastes weaken them. That's one reason why they failed. Pepsodent multiplies their power.

Watch the change

The way to know is to make this test. Judge by what you see and feel. It will be a revelation.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

Then you will realize how important this is to the people in your home. Cut out coupon now.

Adventures Of The Twins

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Nancy and Nick stood looking at Jack Straw's house spinning around on top of a sleigh in Mix-Up Land. That is the last place it has jumped to.

"I know what I'll do," cried Nick. "I'll break another of the eggs that the Cut-Out Lady gave us."

So he broke an egg.

Instantly a ladder appeared and as quickly hopped away toward the sleigh, leaving itself up obligingly against the side.

"Hurry, Nancy. We'll climb it and get to Jack Straw's house," said Nick, starting to run.

"Suppose you know what you are doing, but I'll be careful if I were you," said a voice.

There stood a purple rooster, looking at them through a large pair of spectacles.

"Why?" asked Nancy. "Because if Jack Straw sees you and turns his magic ring, the ladder will tumble about your ears and then where will you be?"

"I'll break another egg and see what happens," said Nick. So he broke another magic egg and out tumbled a feather-bed.

"Ock-a-doodle-do!" crowed the rooster. "I wonder what kind of a hen laid those eggs? They surely ought to bring more than 60 cents a setting!"

"Now I know where we'll be if we fall!" cried Nancy. "On the feather bed! Come, Nick, let's hurry."

"But spose," put in the rooster, "spose" mean old Jack Straw turned his ring another time and a wind comes and blows all the feathers away."

"I'll break another egg and see," said Nick. So he broke another egg, the last one, and what do you think? There was only a piece of paper in it.

"Well, I declare!" said the rooster. "I guess our troubles will be over soon and Mix-Up Land will be Apple Pie Land again. That's the very paper I've been searching for. It tells how to get rid of that rogue, Jack Straw."

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES

Coppy chatted a peculiar language that Jack could not understand. It apparently was bird talk, for the little Balloon Land Birds immediately swooped down and each took hold of a portion of the cloud Jack and Flip were sitting on. Suddenly the cloud started to move lightly through the air.

Coppy Balloon floated along beside the cloud and chatted gaily to Jack. "How do you like riding on a balloon?" he asked. "Oh," replied Jack, "that is the finest ride I've ever taken. It's just like the dreams I've had—floating through the air and seeing wonderful sights all around me."

Suddenly the cloud started to settle down and the little balloon bird let go of it and floated away. The cloud finally was perfectly still and Coppy told Jack to hop off of it and onto another cloud that was much bigger. "This big cloud is the Balloon Land Playground," said Coppy. (Continued.)

Miss Gloria Morgan And Reginald Vanderbilt Married

NEW YORK, March 6.—(By the Associated Press)—Strolling a march on reporters and curious persons who had gathered before the Park Avenue residence of Glenn Stewart, Reginald C. Vanderbilt, member of one of New York's oldest and wealthiest families, and Miss Gloria Morgan, 19-year-old daughter of Harry Hays Morgan, American consul general at Brussels, were married shortly after noon today at the home of Miss Anna Donald, in East 92nd street.

About fifty close friends of the couple were apprised of the change in plans and arrived at the Donald home in time to witness the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt left immediately in a special train for Newport, where they will spend a few days on Mr. Vanderbilt's Sandy Point farm before sailing on a honeymoon tour of Europe.

All information about the wedding, save the bare confirmation of the fact that it had been solemnized, was withheld at the Donald home. It was learned, however, that the Rev. John Haynes Holmes, pastor of the Community Church, performed the ceremony.

The Stewart home, where the wedding was to have been held, had been decorated in gray and white, the Vanderbilt horse shoe colors, for the ceremony.

Glenn Stewart had been scheduled to give Miss Morgan in marriage, while Constance, the Countess of Marquis, Miss Morgan's sister, and Miss Cathleen Vanderbilt, were to be bridesmaids, Mrs. Stewart, matron of honor, and Julius McCurthy Little, best man.

The couple, unaccompanied, appeared in Municipal building this morning and obtained a marriage license.

Mr. Vanderbilt, who is a son of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt, gave his age as 42 and his residence at Portsmouth, N. Y. He produced papers showing he had been divorced by Cathleen G. Nielson, in Newport, in April, 1920. Miss Morgan gave her address as Brussels, her birthplace as Luxor, Switzerland.

Mr. Vanderbilt met Miss Morgan a year ago at a yachting party.

Teams On Housing Drive Report; $50,000 Goal Has Not Been Reached

When a meeting of the Retailers Teams named to solicit subscriptions for stock in the Portsmouth Industrial Housing commission met at the Chamber of Commerce this morning the solicitors reported that many business men had not been seen and that second trips would have to be made to see some of the prospective buyers of stock.

From the reports turned in this morning the sale of stock so far has only been fairly satisfactory. The solicitors reported that many who were approached are desirous of letting someone else bear the burden of furnishing the money for the houses needed.

The quota set for the Retailers Teams was $50,000, but the reports this morning showed that there would have to be hard work on behalf of the teams if this goal was to be reached.

The Team workers will get busy tomorrow in order to complete their work by Thursday when a luncheon for all Team workers will be held at the BHS at 11:45 when final reports are expected to be made.

Spring Opening

COSTUME DETAILS, those intriguing bits of feminine fancy that every woman chooses as the final complement to her Spring ensemble are presented in assortments to which the countries of many continents have contributed their best.

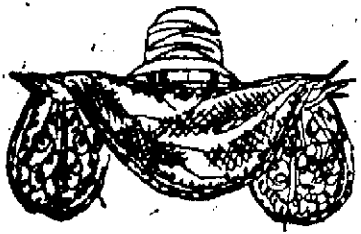

From India and Egypt comes the mode for paisley and bandanas. Turkish harems send inspiration for the veil that just covers milady's eyes, while Egypt sponsors the sash that is drawn snugly about one's hips and tied in the center front. Paris, inimitable Paris, has fashioned gauntlet gloves with perky cuffs, while China at the opposite side of the globe sends jade for curious trinkets.

Soon comes the natural New Year—East—er, according to Nature's own calendar—daily proving more and more that last year's leaves are not expected to be dangling from this year's trees.

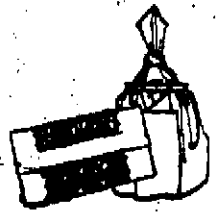

To this great day of NEW THINGS this store contributes—bringing from the four corners of everywhere ten thousand and one things of NEWNESS, too. New ideas in comfort and utility—the newest expressions of today's taste and culture, refinement and fancy.

Every aisle is astir with this spirit of newness Easter brings, and you cannot help but be thrilled as you choose for yourself from the new things all about you the particular new things that are to belong to you, and nobody else.

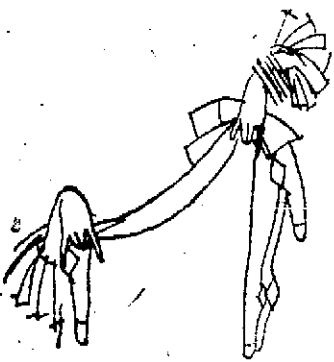

THE VEIL'S the thing. A mere filmy wisp of a thing, it's just large enough to fit 'round the clever cloche hats of Spring.

BAG IN HAND is the proper caper if you would be hand and glove with the mode. You may choose a Handbag of rich gold or silver cloth to carry out the oriental trend.

HANDS AND FEET first is a rule many women follow—find easy to follow in fact when Gloves and Hosiery are so attractive.

EMERGING from the bleakness of winter the Spring mode arrives laden with color and joyously debonair in its most limitless love of ornament. Fashion's Spring caravan hails from the Orient, gives off a scent of sandalwood and snacks of things mystical.

Through the medium of print Fashion broadcasts much of her message, prints from India, Persia, and Egypt. She favors beading, braiding and bandings too; tiered skirts and pleated ones; boxed jackets and flaring wraps.

Choosing Your Hat

THAT'S always been an experience with a thrill in it and more so this Spring than ever. Hats that we unpacked one by one from their tissue wrappings you may see all at once on this occasion and what a show it is! $5 to $35.

Enter Robin Red Breast And Children's New Togs

LIKE the little man that you are, John, and also sweet Marijane, you need clothes that quite come up to your station, and it's here in these complete displays that mother will find them. Crisp tub suits and others with wash waists and wool trousers as well as frocks for Marijane that are too dainty for words.

Junior Misses who make a point of being right up to the minute even down to the finest details will find in these Spring displays clothes that meet their heart's desires.

Up the Sleeves of New Wraps There's Smartness

INDEED it is the sleeves of Wraps that are a most important feature. Generally full at the top they are often called cape or batwing. Cuffs richly embroidered or braided also lend interest. You'll want a Wrap because so many coats are just short jackets—not nearly dressy enough except for the most informal occasions. $39.50 to $65.00.

Suits Breeze In

ON the first bright, sunshiny days what would you like most to be wearing when you promenade down the street? If you don't say a triping Suit it is only because you haven't seen these—some with buoyant bolero jackets and others on acetate lines. Many are lined with printed silk but tallies with the bodice of the frock these jackets, halfway hide. $39.50 to $69.50.

Oriental Splendor Enhances Spring Frocks

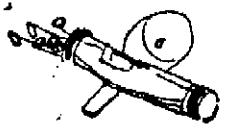

IT'S a season of Frocks. Even suit jackets choose Frocks instead of skirts as their better halves. In this array are styles we're sure will please the most fastidious tastes. There are Frocks of printed crepe in Indian pattern that you will wear with jaunty jackets, and there are dressier crepes with center drapes eccentrically embroidered. $16.95 to $69.50.

A stroll through our great second floor Apparel Shop during Dress-Up Week will reveal to your vision all the principal modes planned to greet and welcome Spring. As this scene is gradually unfolded showing copies and suggestions of true Parisian source one feels that a complete style education is to be had merely for the looking.

Larger Women will be delighted with the way designers have concentrated on those features of the mode which are most becoming to full-formed figures in fashioning the distinctive apparel on display at this Opening. In choosing costumes ready to wear you know at a glance which styles best suit your figure.

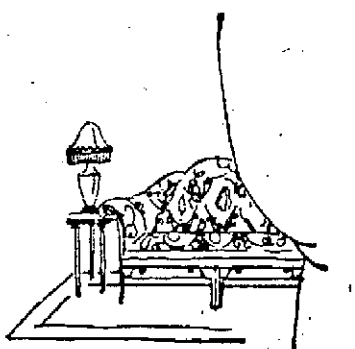

PIRATE-WISE the Bandana has stolen the hearts of fashionable women. It has wound itself around their throats, their waists, their arms and even gone to their heads.

SWIRLING lengths of new Spring fabrics—what a wealth of daintily costumes their colorful patterns furnish to the woman who is clever with her needle.

HOMEFIRES needn't go out with the winter if you choose a new lamp, a new Rug or new draperies, just something to make the home more hospitable.

Until Saturday at 6 o'clock, this store is observing Spring Opening or Dress Up Week, and a most cordial invitation is extended to the public to come and view Spring's newest fancies.

Grippe

Physicians advise keeping the bowels open as a safeguard against Grippe or Influenza.

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowels to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or a laxative—so cannot grip. Try it today.

EASTER MODES

Arriving Daily In Time For

DRESS-UP WEEK

MARCH 6th TO 10th

In selecting your Easter wear, you'll want to know, that what you have chosen is of the newest.

The very reason for Mr. Kline's second trip to the style center, New York, within the past three weeks, for in buying recently after styles have changed, you are assured of everything we show is right and really of the very newest.

Suits

EASTER more than any other day, is a Clothes occasion, on which the fashionable thing to do, is to don your very best and join the STYLE PARADE.

Easter ushers in the formal inauguration of the Spring Suit, and comes this year on April first. A good reason why you should select your suit early.

You'll be enthused over the Suit Modes this year. The three-piece Suit leads in favor, although the two-piece Suit is on an equal demand.

In fact, we are inclined to believe that fashion is turning again, though mayhap slowly toward the popularity of two-piece Suits.

Balkan effects are the most authentic interpretations in blouse modes for three-piece Suits; detachable blouses are also good, and one can easily choose the suit blouse in our Waist department where they are to be had in large variety.

Coat lengths are variable. The warm-golden shades of brown and tan are the outstanding colors. They're indeed reasonably priced and make choosing a real pleasure.

Wraps

For The Easter Parade

On Easter day, everything you wear should smack of newness and your Wrap most of all, for it is first seen.

From the attractive assortments we have on display, you'll have no trouble choosing. They follow Spring's favorite styles and are interestingly varied in selection. As to price, well, you'll be agreeably surprised how reasonable they are.

Then too, there are those popular Capes, and no wonder they're so popular. You should see how beautifully and cleverly they are. The minute you slip one on, there's an immediate desire to possess one and they're really the thing over one's frock.

They flare out with an air of nonchalance that's typical of Spring. They're breezy, always different looking, for the wind never twice puffs them out the same.

Of soft lustrous fabrics and of novel silk weaves, they boast just such air of difference that makes them so fashionable.

Frocks

IT'S SMART TO WEAR A FROCK

Especially, if the day turns out to be pleasantly mild, a smart Frock worn perhaps with a snug choker, or fur scarf beneath your chin, is a most fashionable outfit.

Cloth frocks, particularly those in Eton jacket effect that almost resemble a suit, are very appropriate, but not any more so than the silk crepes richly trimmed.

Every nook and corner of the Orient has been pilfered for the eccentric designs and gorgeous colorings that make Silk Frocks for Spring so good to look at.

You'll look smart in either frock and find the display particularly interesting, mostly because of its reasonableness in price.

What You'll Find In Peeking Into Spring's Frenchy Band Boxes

You'll find what we found; we are sure you'll like what we liked, for it seemed that each tissue wrapping that was pushed aside, as they came out of the work room, revealed a Spring Chapeau more winsome than the last.

One a close-fitting cloche, indeed many of the jaunty styles were, but one of the Almond green cleverly braided was as pert as could be.

Another was poke shaped with a flower banded brim, just the brim from under which to style glance.

Oh, there are lots of lovely ones and just the right one for you, at a price reasonably low, namely $3.95 and up.

Easter Togs Designed To Delight THE JUNIOR MISS

Indeed, young daughters aren't the only ones who have been dreaming of new Easter clothes.

We've had them in mind for many weeks past, and since this is one time that the best laid plans of men didn't go astray, Junior Misses' apparel displays are particularly attractive.

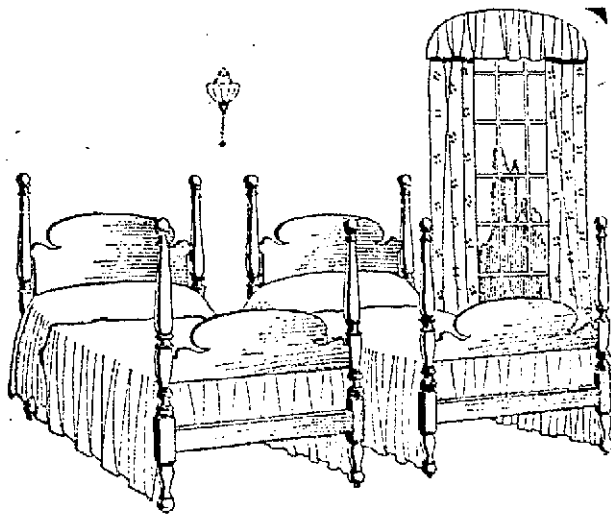

They're just intended for the SUB-DEB, that sweet young girl somewhere in her teens—just ready for life, theoretically an onlooker in the game of life, because she has not made her social debut, but is intensely alive, romantic, loyal and ready for her debut. She'll like the display when she sees it. Dresses, Coats, Capes, Skirts, Sweaters and Hats.

Government Candidates Defeated In Great Britain

LONDON, Mar. 6.—(By the Associated Press)—The Government's ill luck in its search for safe seats for its members who were defeated in the general election is compelling Premier Bonar Law to consider partial reconstruction of his ministry, as was foreboded in a fortnight ago.

Sir Arthur Griffith-Boscawen's resignation from the ministry of health was announced tonight. It followed quickly upon his defeat in the bye-election for the Middlesbrough division of Surrey by the Labor candidate, J. Clutter Ede.

Only a day or two ago Lieutenant Colonel George F. Stanley, under secretary for home affairs, was defeated in the bye-election at Willesden, and retired from office.

It is probable that Sir Arthur Griffith-Boscawen will be succeeded by Arthur Neville Chamberlain, the present Postmaster General, who will make still another ministerial move. It was learned today that Mr. Bonar Law had invited Lord Birkenhead to join the government, but had met with refusal, possibly because, as rumored, Birkenhead aspires to the foreign portfolio, and the prime minister could hardly displace Lord Curzon in order to install Lord Birkenhead.

It is understood that Mr. Bonar Law is making overtures to Austin Chamberlain and other members of the late government who went out with Mr. Lloyd George with the object of strengthening the debating power of the government benches.

Have Reached Accord.

LONDON, Mar. 5.—A dispatch to The Times from Cologne says General Sir Arthur Godley, commander of the British forces at Cologne, and General Degoutte, the French commander in the occupied regions, have arrived at a satisfactory agreement.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Little and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup. It is simple and cheap, but it is the equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 1/2 ounce of Pinex from any drugstore, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly Pinex penetrates through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine eucalypti extract known the world over for its healing effect on membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Finex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Harding

Mr. Harding is physically and mentally tired. He is not what one would call a robust individual. Ever since his youth, physicians have advised him to lead an outdoor life as much as possible. While in Ohio politics and later in the United States senate, he was able to follow that advice scrupulously. But since he has been president, it has been different. His favorite recreation has been golf, but he had not been president very long before word began to come from various parts of the country that some people thought he was not working hard enough and was playing golf too often. It takes extraordinary determination to play while there is public business piled high on one's desk and Mr. Harding for a long time took his recreation reluctantly but regularly. Then he began to play every other day and finally for several days at a time he didn't get any recreation. It began to tell on him. His nerves increased and his health began to fail. It took the president two weeks to recover from a slight cold and he still shows some of the effects of confinement.

Anxious About Mrs. Harding

Besides official worries, Mr. Harding has been anxious about the health of his wife. Her convalescence has been long. She has always been her husband's business adviser and the country knows but little of the deep interest she has taken in the solution of some of the more important tasks of the president's last two years. She is a woman of keen insight and keeps thoroughly informed all the time on current affairs. What with congress trying to get a year's work done in a few weeks, Mr. Harding ill, and foreign affairs worrisome, Mr. Harding's regular daily program has been shot to pieces in the last three months. The trip to Florida has been looked forward to as the curative. Mrs. Harding has hoped her husband would detach himself completely from official burdens and really take a rest. Many a wife has hoped her busy husband would do the same thing. Some business men have succeeded in really getting a mental rest when on a vacation but many have confessed failure to drive away from their minds.

Taking Along Few Officials

President Harding is taking along a few officials, but not for the purpose of talking shop. They are men he comes to like as chums and companions. They will play bridge or golf as the case may be and help drive away the monotony which often overcomes an individual who tries vacation in solitude. Mr. Harding likes company.

Members of the cabinet will slip away for a little rest during the month of March. Secretary Hughes will stay on the job because Europe may any day develop a crisis that needs American assistance. Mr. Harding counts on the officials remaining in Washington to inform him only of the most important developments that require his advice. Many a president has set forth with such a determination only to find that he couldn't help doing at least some work every day. The Hardings hope they will have better luck and that the country and the world will kindly save its crisis till after the first of April when the party returns to the national capital.

Bills Approved By Rules Committee Get Preference

COLUMBUS, O., March 6.—(By the Associated Press)—Working under a new speed-up program directed by the rules committee which has assumed the duty of arranging the calendar each day, the house was expected to act on a number of minor measures today.

Decision to have the arrangement of the calendar supervised by the committee in the hope that adjournment would be possible early in April was announced yesterday by Speaker Grissold. The system will permit bills approved by the committee to come up for passage.

After deferring action at a brief session yesterday on the motion of Senator Frank Burch, Akron, to reconsider the vote on the passage of the Jenkins conspiracy bill, the senate was expected to consider the matter today with predictions freely made that reconsideration would be approved and that the bill would be killed or sent back to the committee.

Under the measure which was passed last Wednesday with only two dissenting votes, conspiracy to commit any offense against the state would be punishable by a fine of from $100 to $5,000 and imprisonment of from one to five years. The proposal of Representative John T. Brown, Republican of Champaign county for a tax of two cents per gallon on gasoline used for the operation of motor vehicles on the public highways, was accorded a hearing before the house highways committee today, with representatives of automobile clubs voicing objection.

Night Rider Victim Testifies

MEDFORD, ORE., March 6.—(By the Associated Press)—Joseph F. Hale, victim of hooded night riders, was expected to resume his testimony here today in the trial of Dr. Jonett P. Bray, Medford minister and later practicing chiropractor, J. F. Hiltson, automobile dealer and ex-chief of police of Medford; Howard A. Hale testified yesterday that he was charged by the masked party with unbefitting conduct toward two Medford women. He was positive in his identification of Dr. Bray as a member of the hooded band.

Evidence Submitted

BASTROP, LA., March 6.—(By the Associated Press)—First evidence towards the intended indictment of from 20 to 50 persons on charges ranging from assault and battery to murder in connection with masked band depredations in Morehouse Parish, which are alleged to have culminated in the deaths last August of Watt Daniel and T. F. Richard, was to be introduced today. Organization of the parish grand jury was completed yesterday.

A. V. Coco, state attorney general, intended as his first step towards the desired indictments, to give the grand jury today the testimony obtained at the state's open hearing here last January.

Mr. Coco has charged that the masked bands were composed of members of the Ku Klux Klan. After presenting the record of the open hearing, it was expected that the attorney general would call several witnesses.

It was believed here today it would be a week or more before the results of the grand jury's deliberations became known.

THE LEEDS BANK ROBBERY

BY E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

Copyright, 1922, by E. Phillips Oppenheim
All rights reserved. NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SIR NORMAN GREYES, formerly of Scotland Yard, is devoting his time to tracking down

MICHAEL SAYERS, arch criminal. Sayers is known to Greyes under the alias of Stanfield. Michael drives in a small car to Brown's bank in the suburb of Leeds, shoots the manager through the shoulder, strikes the clerk senseless, and robs the bank of over 7,000 pounds. Stepping from the bank into a touring car in which JANET SOALE, his confederate, awaits him. Sayers races for Scotland. A confederate named Roberson takes charge of the small car and is arrested but freed for want of evidence. Michael passes the stolen notes to men in two motor cars and a motorcycle, leaving no evidence of theft on Sayers' person.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

Sir Norman Resumes

"You seem to have done everything possible, Rimmington," I said at last. "But I think, as my Norway trip has fallen flat, I shall go up to Scotland for a fortnight. Would you like me to call over at Leeds and see if I can pick up anything?"

"Exactly what I hoped you would suggest," he confessed eagerly. "I have brooded over the affair so long that I can think of nothing but the obvious side. The Chief will give you a letter to the Leeds people. Would you like me to come with you?"

"I shook my head.

"That night I traveled down to Leeds.

There was nothing about the neighborhood which differed materially from Rimmington's description. I paid a visit to the place at exactly the hour the robbery had been committed, walked from the grocery store to the bank, carefully timing myself, and made some trifling purchases inside the shop. The neighborhood seemed to be thickly built over and populated in patches, but here and there were vacant lots. The land opposite the grocery was marked out for building, but operations as yet had not begun. Later in the day I tracked Roberson to ground in his favorite public-house. Choosing my opportunity, I addressed him.

"Are you the man whom the police made such idiots of themselves about in this bank robbery?" I asked.

"What the hell's that to do with you?" he answered.

"His tone was truculent, but he obviously only needed a little humoring.

"Just this much," I replied. "I am a journalist representing one of the picture papers. It would be worth a fiver to you if you would let me do a sketch of you."

His manner changed at once.

"You don't want an interview?"

"Not likely," I assured him, commencing a rough sketch in a notebook which I had put into my pocket for that purpose. "I read the case myself. A fiver could see that you had nothing to do with it."

He stopped drinking and looked at me curiously.

"If I were the police," I went on, "I should want to know a little more about the two tourists on their way to Scotland."

"Then you're as big a fool as the police," he retorted gruffly. "They hadn't nothing to do with it. They were filling up with petrol and neither of them budged from the car."

I smiled in a superior way and went on sketching. He watched me with thinly veiled anxiety.

"Toffs they were," he went on, "on their way up for a lot of sport."

"Maybe," I commented. "They didn't seem in any hurry about it."

"What do you mean?"

"I don't see why they stayed at the Queen's two nights," I remarked.

"Who said they did?" he demanded. "They stayed one night, and grumbled at having to do that."

"How do you know?" I asked, looking up at him.

"I spoke to the chauffeur," he replied sulkily. "He told me my oil was leaking."

I changed the subject, finished my ridiculous sketch, and handed over the five pounds. That night I caught the mail train to Scotland.

It took me less than a week to discover the whereabouts of the man and the woman who I learned were passing under the name of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Grover. On the morning after my arrival at the very remote corner of Scotland where they had taken up their temporary abode, I committed an indiscretion. I donned a knickerbocker suit and set out for a tramp over the moors.

I had just clambered up to the top of a little ridge overlooking the sea, when I came face to face with a little party ascending it from the other side. The little party consisted of the person I had known chiefly as Mr. Stanfield, his wife, a villainous-looking gillie, and two dogs. It was a curious moment, full of suggestions of tragedy, afterward ridiculous in its conventionality. I saw the flash of the man's gun, and I saw the woman's hand restrain him, heard the single word, whispered in his ear. I raised my cap; he followed suit. His gun hung idly under his arm. My hand was inside my breast-pocket, clutching something hard.

"What an extraordinary meeting!" Janet exclaimed with a faint smile.

"So you sometimes take a holiday also, Sir Norman?"

"Sometimes," I admitted. "I came home unexpectedly from Norway. I was disappointed in my fishing."

"Are you aware that you're trespassing, mon?" the gillie demanded severely.

"I'm afraid I didn't know it," I replied. "There were no notices."

"It doesn't matter," Janet intervened. "We happen to be walking up a cover of birds this way."

"I put nothing up," I assured them.

"They lie verra close hereabouts," the gillie observed. "We'll take a little further sweep."

"How long are you staying in these parts, Sir Norman?" Stanfield inquired.

"About a week, if I like the golf," I answered.

"I've taken the Lodge, down there," he pointed out. "Call and see us before you leave."

"Won't you come and dine with us tonight?" Janet invited, with a challenge in her eyes.

"I hesitated. The invitation appealed to me in one way as much as it repelled me in another. Stanfield watched me as though he were reading my thoughts.

"You need not take suit," he said grimly.

"THERE ARE LIMITS TO MY CANDOR," I PROTESTED MILDLY. "WHAT I MAY SUSPECT I KEEP TO MYSELF."

"I shall be delighted," I assented. "About eight o'clock I suppose?"

"Not about. I implore you," Janet answered earnestly. "Sandy shall catch you some trout this afternoon, and they must be served to the second. Say a quarter to eight, please."

"I will be punctual," I promised.

I SPENT the afternoon wandering about the moor, inspecting the golf links and speaking on the telephone. Punctually at twenty minutes to eight I passed up the long, neglected drive and presented myself at the sonder-looking house. The summons of a harsh bell was answered almost immediately by an immaculate butler. Janet, from the other end of the cool white hall, came forward to meet me. The dinner was well cooked; the champagne was excellent; and my host, with a twinkle in his eyes, called my attention to the fact that it was opened in my presence. As soon as the last course was concluded, Janet led the way out onto the flagged terrace, where a table was already arranged with dessert and coffee.

"You are a brave man, Sir Norman," my hostess said abruptly.

"Why?" I asked.

"You know—and you alone—that I once killed a man, although you don't altogether know why," she went on softly. "How do you know that I have not within me the makings of a modern Ligeia?"

I have read quite a good deal about poisons.

I may be said even to have studied the subject; and you have delivered yourself into my hands."

"Why should you poison me?" I argued. "I will do both you and your husband the credit to believe that you don't bear malice. Revenge is a senseless sentiment."

My hostess leaned forward in his chair. This face was solemn and brooding.

"You have things against me dating from far back," he said.

I nodded.

"But I am in the same position as Scotland Yard," I reminded him.

"For those things I have no case. For those misdeeds of which I suspect you in the past, I could at the present moment go only so far as to procure a warrant charging you with feloniously wounding a pe-die inspector. For the rest, I suspect, but I have no proof."

"You suspect what?" he asked.

"I shook my head."

"There are limits to my candor," I protested mildly. "You must admit that I am not secretive or unduly aloof, inasmuch as I dine at your table, discuss your peccadilloes and pass on like an ordinary guest."

What I may suspect of the past I keep to myself. I am your enemy, and you know it. If it pays you to attempt to murder me, I imagine you will try."

"Janet would desert me if I did," he declared with a grim smile. "She finds these little conferences with you so inspiring."

She looked at me with that wonderful smile of hers. She was a little way behind a pillar, and her face was hidden from her husband.

"I do not like to hear you say that we are enemies," she murmured. "I would rather think that we are like the soldiers who fight in two opposing armies. We fight because it is our duty. So we are enemies because it is our duty. Even that does not interfere with personal feelings."

"That is true," I admitted carefully. "I could never absolutely dislike a man who played such good golf as your husband."

"And what about me?" she demanded.

"You drive me to be obvious," I replied. "No one could possibly dislike a person who contributed to the beauty of the world."

She laughed softly.

"Why, you are a courtier, Sir Norman," she declared. "Your compliments and the perfume of those roses and the flavor of the Benedic-tine are getting into my head. I begin to picture you as the serpent who has crawled into this Utopian paradise."

"Talking about golf," her husband intervened in a harsh tone, "what about a game, Sir Norman? Will you play me tomorrow morning?"

DRESS UP WEEK

Perplexed is the woman in these early days of the season when modes are being established. That she may know the correct silhouette—the favored fabrics and shades is the motive behind this style exposition. She may view in full confidence; and choose as she may; no error of judgment can be made for the clever lines of every garment on display are correct as correct can be—authoritatively and distinctively in the mode.

Every department throughout the store has been working in earnest to display before your eyes the various lines of merchandise for your personal self as well as for your home. Such as new draperies, curtains, rugs, cooking utensils, glassware, dinner ware, aluminum ware, etc., that help dress up the home, also new silks, woollens, ginghams, hosiery, footwear, gloves, jewelry, neckwear, lingerie, millinery, infants wear and many other lines will be on display for your approval this entire week. Your attendance is invited and please feel that you are not obligated to purchase. Merely come in and acquaint yourself with what's new.

Applied Design In Women's Coats

The silhouette of the spring coat is straight, although the line varies from the wrap-around to the flat-bloused effect. The versatility lies in the manner of decoration, now on the sleeves, now on the collar, now on the blouse, now over the entire surface. Braids, serpentine soutache, all-over swirl applique, cable stitching, all-over chainette embroidery, silk cords, large French knots and metal thread treatments suggest the variety of applied design.

Applied Design In Suit-Costumes

The suit-costume of the season is new by reason of applied design. Braid application varies from straight lines to the most intricate scrolls. Ribbon is flat or latticed. Embroidery is brief and bright, or all-over and black. Here a touch of tinsel thread, there a touch of leather, now cutout inserts of silk or cretonne, suggest the range of treatment.

Fashion's Favorites For Spring Costume Blouses

For the woman who seeks a distinctive blouse as an adjunct to her Spring suit, there is a fairly dazzling array of all that is smartest and richest in silk costume blouses.

All the fascinating motifs of Egyptian and Oriental origin have been cleverly evolved into stunning printed designs for these very newest silk weaves. And the colors! As brilliant as you like or harmoniously subdued.

There are pretty slip-on styles or your favorite Jacquette model—both find favor in Fashion's eye for Spring wear.

NEW CRUSADE REVIVAL RESUMES TONIGHT

Interest Continues To Grow; New Boston Delegation Special Guests Tonight

(By A. P. Haight)

Assuming the vast proportions of a county-wide revival, that which was intended primarily for Portsmouth, the New Crusade will again take up its forward march this evening following the lead of Dr. Anderson and party beginning at seven, following the same direction—forward.

As the meeting is near the half-way mark, ten days having passed, more time to go, it is well that we may take a short review of the past and see if we have gotten very far. A common sense sort of review asks what has been done, and then immediately forms an opinion of what may be accomplished in the future.

The ten churches co-operating are not going to reap all the benefits of the big campaign, but those outside will come in for some part in the result. This is true of the unchurched folk, those who do not affiliate, those who look at every church member as having a "reason" for belonging to the church, and judges those who follow the Nazarene by some certain one whom they thought to be a real "hepocrite." These folk, too, will reap some of whatever benefits that may come from the movement, in that it is calling for higher, nobler thought and appealing to men to live better, cleaner lives. It only a few respond to this appeal, the whole city will be benefited in proportions. If many follow the better impulse that this crusade calls for, then a greater influence will be noticeable.

It is well that we may note at this time some of the messages brought the past ten days, in a brief resume of the crusade. These messages have been the means of drawing ever increasing numbers to the tabernacle, and when hundreds were turned away for lack of room Sunday evening, it will give them an opportunity to get, in some small measure the character of sermons being preached. The first sermon of the series was one which showed that though the city may be steeped in sin, a "valley of dry bones" yet like the vision of Ezekiel, with proper touching and response, these "dry bones" might live.

"The Other Fellow" gave to those interested in loved ones, in neighbors, in the city, even to the uttermost parts of the county, calling them to the work of helping to save the other fellow and not be satisfied with looking after their own safety only.

"Bald Heads—Outside and In" was an appeal to the younger folk of the city. The comparison showing that while we could not prevent the baldness on the outside we could see to it that the inside of the head contained a clean, well-trained mind un-abused by self-indulgences.

"The White-Robed Christ", the picture of the purity of Jesus and an appeal that each place himself against the purity and whiteness of his robes that the stain of sin might be clearly seen by the sinner and the blood might wash away that sin.

"Love Slaves", a gem. Appealing still to saint and sinner alike, it brought out the fact that it is easy to do a thing if we love the one for whom it is done. Love makes us willing slaves to the loved ones.

The horrible, the blackness of sin when it has matured was shown in the likeness to a harmless egg. It was presented strongly that "sin always hatches" into something more terrible than the sinner ever dreamed of, or imagined.

The love of mother, sister of the father visited upon the children was clearly presented in "Jehovah, or the Seven Crosses of the Old Testament." Introducing Jesus the Son of God, Dr. Anderson gave a fine descriptive sermon of the Man of Galilee in all his activities in his sermon "Do You Know Jesus?"

"The Awakening Conscience" with its appeal to those who have lulled the finer sensibilities of conscience to sleep, was an alarm that could not fail to arouse that something within that warns one of his misdoings if it has been trained according to the high standard of right living and then put into a hypnotic state by the anaesthetic of indifference.

In "Ananias and Sapphira and Some Other Liars" one could see pictures of himself at various times of life, a description of many church members, and said to relate, a vivid picture of many of those active in church and Bible school work, who were keeping back part of the price.

The message for men only on Sunday afternoon, had its appeal especially for men. In "Male and Female" Dr. Anderson has provided a gem of literature freighted with a message of love and an appeal to the better side of man in the treatment of his loved ones, those whom he should revere and protect.

"Babylon," one of the wonders of the ancient world, and still the subject of much study and thought by archeologists was given in one of the best descriptive narratives that it has been our privilege to hear. Drawing from its carefully constructed architecture the lessons he wished, the speaker then took up the thing that really makes a city, its people, and the things that really tell what the people are, its society, and contrasting the dissipation of the society of Babylon to the clean, clear-cut life of Daniel, an appeal was made to both young and old for the better life, for the strengthening of the character by clean living and non-indulgence.

Tonight the special guests will be delegations from the New Boston churches and their friends.

The sermon this evening will have for its subject "Why I Am NOT an Infidel." No doubt many will hear this, which Dr. Anderson believes to be one of his best sermons, who are doubtful if not unbelievers, but who if asked could not give one reason why they were unbelievers, except to repeat what they had heard of some other person. No real sound reason for non-belief is likely to come forward under the intense fire of the gospel gun in the hands of such an expert marksman as Dr. Anderson.

Feistelman was driving the engine pulling a south bound freight, was removed to his home in Columbus. Several cars were torn up in the crash and a wrecking crew was called to clear up the wreck.

Advantages Of Canned Goods

Canned foods are already prepared and can be served either hot or cold without the necessity of immediately cooking to make them palatable or digestible. They have been "peeled, sorted, or trimmed, as each may require, so that there is no waste, and the entire contents of the can are nutritious and wholesome.

The palatability and wholesomeness of canned foods are increased by the fact that the canneries are ordinarily located in the center of districts where the products desired are grown or produced. This means securing the raw products with the greatest possible promptness with a minimum amount of handling, and at the most satisfactory stage of maturity or ripeness.

The prompt handling of raw products in an air-tight container preserves to the fullest extent the natural flavor desired.

attention given by this firm to their respective properties by evidence of the fact of the constant stream of new property coming into this office, and the unlimited number of customers to whom we are selling from day to day. We have no solicitors from the buyer, or from the seller, but those who have property to sell place it with us simply because they have faith in our ability to do the selling, and the buyer because he knows that he will get dollar for dollar.

We appreciate this confidence and shall endeavor to give you our very best efforts. We do not belong to any organization whose methods have a tendency to demonize the sale of the better class of property. Property listed

Arrested for Reckless Driving.
O. E. Barr, said to be a salesman for an Akron rubber concern, was apprehended yesterday by the Columbus authorities at the instance of Sheriff Harry Dunham and the prisoner will be brought here tonight to meet a charge of reckless driving. The complaint on which Barr was arrested was filed by Andrew Watson, a Mt. Joy farmer, who claims that careless driving by the accused resulted in an accident on Scioto trail last Saturday afternoon, near Rosemount Road. Watson alleges that his machine was crowded off the roadway and into a ditch by Barr's car. John D. Little, of Otway, who was in the Watson car, was severely injured, sustaining a broken right shoulder and a dislocated hip in the accident.

Harding's Party Nears Florida; Looks Forward To Golf

ON BOARD PRESIDENT HARDING'S TRAIN NEAR SAVANNAH, GA., March 6.—(By the Associated Press.)—Visions of rest and freedom from wearing official duties which the president has had for months, today became real.

The chief executive with Mrs. Harding and more than a half dozen friends, awoke this morning hearing the border of Florida where for a month he will endeavor to find relaxation after a year of steady attention to the international and domestic problems of the nation.

Evidence that the president was looking forward eagerly to a vacation have been apparent to those of his party ever since the departure yesterday at noon from Washington. As the special drew near Orlando, the first stopping place on the trip, the eagerness grew.

Preparations for making the most of the vacation began early today. Golf clubs were brought forward and the conversation turned to the relative merits of the golf courses in the dozen or so Florida east coast resorts. A game of golf has been arranged as the first feature of the president's vacation on reaching Orlando about midday.

The thoughts of the executive during the trip were not altogether of the prospective pleasures, however. During a stop at Rocky Mount, N. C., last evening the president was greeted by several hundred employees of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad and their families, and his first questions were as to conditions in the railroad industry. Rocky Mount was one of the storm centers in last summer's rail strikes and Mr. Harding wanted to know how things were going with the men. They assured him that all now was well and when Secretary of Labor Davis appeared on the platform, the head of the labor department got a round of applause.

"Have you any hell weeds down here?" the president asked.

"You bet we have hell weeds and also corn liquor," spoke up a man in the back of the crowd.

"You know you are not supposed to have any of the latter," the president responded, and I guess there is not so much of it as there is talk about."

Revival Resumes At Allen Chapel

The Trial of Christ at Allen Chapel resumed Sunday and resumed Monday night.

"He that hath received his testimony hath set his seal that God is true," Evangelist Harper said. "He that believeth in the Son hath the witness in himself. Jacob dreamed of an accessible way to heaven. Now you have the reality. Christ has provided a way. Will you decide for him tonight? Will you accept the pardon which he offers you? Give God a chance on your life. Your sins are pardoned. Are you willing to accept the pardon? A man would be crazy to remain in prison after he is pardoned."

Prayer meetings every afternoon. All are welcome.

Committee Impressed By Big Revival

Germany Will Not Consider Intervention At This Time

BERLIN, March 6.—(By the United Press.)—Germany cannot consider intervention at the present time, Chancellor Cuno declared today in a speech to the Reichstag. "Later on," Cuno said, "the German government might listen to a third party's attempt to intervene." Cuno frequently alluded to alleged French atrocities in the occupied areas.

"It is strange that the world is witnessing what is going on in the Ruhr without making any effort to intervene," he declared. A crowded house heard the address. Members of the Reichstag had been convened today, ahead of time, following occupation of Mannheim, Karlsruhe and Darmstadt.

President And Hughes To Stump The Country

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(By the United Press.)—President Harding and Secretary of State Hughes, during the long recess of congress, will stump the country for America's participation in a permanent court of international justice at The Hague, according to close friends of the executive. In much the same fashion as Woodrow Wilson, four years ago, made an extended speaking tour in the country west of the Mississippi, in a futile hope of obtaining America's approval for the League of Nations, President Harding this summer will go over a similar route and in direct appeals to the people ask that the country ratify his proposal for America's participation in international arbitration court. Congress provided for additional funds for an extended speaking tour by the president.

Ironton Loses Fight For Cheaper Gas

COLUMBUS, March 6.—The City of Ironton today lost its fight against increase gas rates as proposed by the United Fuel Gas Company, when the Supreme Court knocked out an injunction granted to the city by lower courts which restrained the Fuel Company from charging more than 27 1/2 cents per 1000 feet. This rate was made under a 25-year franchise in 1897. In 1909 the city passed a 10-year ordinance calling for the same rate as the original franchise. This was accepted by the company.

Rev. Evans Says Church Should See That Slaying Of Man Is Rightfully Placed

The first of a series of sermons on civic interest was delivered by Rev. Hugh J. Evans of the Second Presbyterian church Sunday night, when he touched upon the death of a young man in the North End recently, and spoke of the part the church and church members should play in seeing that responsibility for the slaying is rightfully placed.

Rev. Evans did not make any reference to the public officials. In his sermon, he stressed the importance of workers of the church informing the community of its sins.

Rev. Evans in part said: "It is time somebody was assuming responsibility for bringing to justice the offender when a young man shot in the head by a bullet sped from a gun in the hands of his mistress, dies as a result of that bullet wound and the workings of a loathsome disease."

Easy Way To Remove Freckles and Eruptions

Some women have skin of such texture they occasionally are annoyed by the sudden appearance of freckles, slight eruptions or fine lines. March winds usually play havoc with such skins. If one will procure an ounce of ordinary mercuric wax at any drug store, apply a little before retiring, like cold cream, she can easily overcome the trouble. When the wax is washed off next morning, almost invisible flaky skin particles come with it. The entire outer cuticle soon is removed in this way with all its defects. No blemish could so effectively remove freckles or blemishes. The new surface is smooth, clear, fresh looking. No harm or inconvenience accompanies this treatment. — Advertisement.

case contracted from a life on the arm inflicted by some woman."

"Where public sentiment is not enough to demand that the slayer be brought to justice, it is time that someone assumed responsibility," Rev. Evans said.

His subject was "Three of the Church's Purposes." The church serves three other purposes in the community," Rev. Evans said.

"First, it is the voice of conscience, and as such should call to the attention of the community the necessity for clean civic life."

"Second, it is the voice of justice, and should stand for the administration of the laws, and for the punishment of criminals."

While speaking on this second point, Rev. Evans said that he had visited the City Jail recently, and had been shown through the jail by a city official, spending an entire morning there. He found conditions most deplorable, the minister said, and insanitary.

The minister referred to filthy cells found in the woman's ward, and to the general insanitary condition of the institution.

"If a boy is picked up wandering about the streets and held for suspicion and investigation," Rev. Evans said, "there is no place he can be locked up except in with criminals. These conditions should be remedied."

"Third, the church should be the voice of God, warning a community of its sins, and urging that it turn unto God and purify its life."

Rev. Evans is planning a series of Sunday evening sermons on various subjects of civic interest and is making a personal investigation of court and criminal conditions in Portsmouth.

Nine Year Courtship, All Over World, Proves Successful

NEW YORK, March 6.—(By the Associated Press)—A nine-year courtship during which the man traveled more than 35,000 miles, will end here tomorrow, when James Jolley, London civil engineer, and actor will marry Miss Jeanette Sherwin, star in a Broadway play. Jolley was a passenger on the Cedric, arriving today from England.

Miss Sherwin first met Jolley in 1914, in England. When she left for South Africa, Jolley followed her there. They met at Johannesburg and he got an engagement in her company. He proposed but without success. Later they went to India and again he proposed. This time the answer was "yes" and the engagement was consummated at a Delhi. While the company was touring China and Japan the war broke out and Jolley enlisted. He became a lieutenant. Then came a false report that he had been killed. They met again in London, but Miss Sherwin refused to marry him at once, saying she wanted to distinguish herself on the stage. Just recently she decided that she had reached the point in her career where she could marry.

Governor Vetoes Bill To Prohibit Big Auto Race

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., March 6.—(By the Associated Press)—The International 500 mile auto race, the premier event of its kind in the world, will be held here. Memorial Day, as usual, as the result of Governor McCray vetoing an unconstitutional bill passed by both houses of the Indiana legislature which would prohibit the race. The action of the governor which came a few minutes before adjournment of the general assembly ended one of the bitterest factional fights in that body in recent years. A last minute attempt to pass the bill over the governor's veto was made in the senate, but this failed by a 31 to 5 vote and the bill died.

The measure which was sponsored by the state department of the American Legion and which resulted in a split in that body, was intended, its supporters declared, to prevent the commercialization of Memorial Day. The bill was aimed specifically at the 500 mile race, it was said, because of the international aspect of the event, which draws an average annual attendance of more than 125,000 persons. Officials of the Speedway, following introduction of the bill said that the race would either be held on Memorial Day or would be discontinued in Indianapolis.

New Way to End Under-arm Perspiration

Beauty experts and health authorities advise care in the selection of perspiration preventives. Many commercial preparations contain powerful chemicals and harsh astringents which are injurious to the skin and clothing. Dainty women have found that the best thing to use is Nal, a new discovery of a famous Chicago laboratory. Nal is absolutely pure and is guaranteed to be harmless to both skin and clothing. As a matter of fact, it leaves the most sensitive skin soft, cool, smooth and white no matter how often it is used. It destroys every trace of perspiration moisture and odor and leaves the underarms sweet, clean and dry. It dries so quickly you can use it whenever you want to on a moment's notice if necessary. No after treatments are necessary because Nal creates its own soothing cream and dainty tale. You can get Nal at any drug store. It is very inexpensive and a few ounces will last for months. If you want to put an end to all perspiration troubles, be sure your druggist gives you Nal. — Advertisement.

Heart Trouble From Reaching

LODI, CALIF., March 6.—(By the Associated Press)—The state industrial accident commission is holding a hearing here to determine whether a telephone operator can develop heart disease by reaching to a switchboard several hundred times a day. Mrs. Elsie L. Lykens, former operator in the local offices of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, has asserted she developed heart trouble as the result of continuous "plugging in" of calls and has filed an application for compensation.

An allopathic physician, an osteopath and a chiropractor who have been consulted will testify in support of her contention. They say it is the first case of its kind among 13,000 girls employed by the company.

Herrin Trial Continues

MARION, ILLINOIS, March 6.—(By the Associated Press)—Sweeping aside all the legal skirmishing that marked the opening of the first Herrin riots trial, the prosecution today continued the introduction of evidence against Hugh Willis, state border member of the Illinois Mine workers and five other defendants charged with murder in connection with outbreak. The prosecution was prepared to lay special emphasis on its contention that the killing of the twenty-two non-union miners resulted from a conspiracy.

The case of the Haymarket riots in Chicago where an editor and a speaker who took no actual part in the killings, were hanged because they had advocated violence, was cited by C. W. Middlekauff, special prosecutor, in his statement to the jury as applying to the present case. The opening for the introduction of testimony along this line was made by Judge J. T. Hartwell during the first trial which resulted in a verdict of acquittal. Judge Hartwell instructed the first jury that if one of the defendants had helped to take the non-union men from the mine and then had made public announcement that he would take no part in acts of violence, he still would be guilty of murder if the jury found that his previous acts resulted in a murder, even though he had not actually been present at the time of the killing.

Rum Row Bargain Counter Groomed

HIGHLANDS, N. J., Mar. 6.—(By the Associated Press)—Rum Row is working feverishly to get its bargain counters ready for the expected spring rush.

Considerable activity in the fleet, notably three arrivals, two departures, and the arrival of supply tugs from New York was observed today. The most imposing of the new set of Rum Row is a two masted tanker of approximately 2,500 gross tons, and she apparently is loaded to the plimsoll marks. The other arrivals were schooners of the Bahama type.

One of the local bottle fishermen who ventured out to the fleet last night and returned, it is said with a small cargo—fewer than 100 cases—was asked what the new arrivals had aboard.

"Well," he replied, "Tain't 'umma hats."

The Shanghai Wheelbarrow

YES. It was a real old-fashioned Shanghai fog. It had crept up silently and slowly from the lower river and the Woosung bar and it had wrapped the Model Settlement, as the old English residents call it, in a mantle of murky gloom. Deep-toned bells tolled from customs jetties and smaller ones clanged from the ships of all sizes at anchor in the river. Hoarse whistles echoed at regular intervals from steamers trying to creep up the channel, and shrieking ones on tugs and launches pierced the evening air.

"Pandemonium let loose!" said Miss Mary Waltham to her mother, as the mafuo (or native driver) checked-up the pony-cart in which they were returning from the Consulate, just in time to avoid a serious collision with a jin-rik-sha. "I wish to goodness we were safely out of it and back at the hotel. We ought to have left an hour ago, before the fog got too thick. I'm awfully glad father decided to walk and not risk his life in this mob!"

"Oh, never mind, dear," answered Mrs. Waltham. "It's only a little walk from here and we'll be there all safe and sound in a moment. And so they were there, thanks to Inspector Matthews of the Municipal Police, who standing in the roadway and seeing their predicament, seized hold of the pony's bridle and guiding the frightened creature to the edge of the curb, started him in a straight line for the Hongkew Bridge and the Astor House gate.

"Pretty thick night, isn't it, ladies?" remarked young Mr. Davidson, the ever courteous and attentive representative of Messrs. Thomas Cook & Son (under whose auspices the Waltham family were making their first tour of the Orient); as he rushed forward to assist them out of the cart. "A rather good night to stay indoors and enjoy the dance, don't you think?"

"Dance?" eagerly inquired the young lady. "I didn't know there was going to be a dance to-night. How much of an affair is it, Mr. Davidson?"

"Oh, not a regular ball, you know, just a little entertainment given by our lodge."

"And are all the guests of the hotel invited?" asked Mrs. Waltham, as she took his politely lechered hand.

"No, not all of them, of course, but I took especial pains to see that cards were left at your room."

"How very kind and thoughtful of you!" chimed in the daughter. "You are always planning for our comfort and enjoyment, Mr. Davidson."

"Oh, nothing at all, I assure you, the pleasure is all mine, and as there's nothing like being ahead of time, I'm hoping now that you will save a waltz or two for me, Miss Waltham. You see a civilian doesn't have much chance when those navy and military men get on the floor."

"You certainly shall have the very first," she smilingly replied. "In fact, being almost a total stranger here, I shall have to rely upon you to fill out my programme for me."

The dance of the Royal Arcade Lodge at the Astor House that evening passed off most delightfully for all concerned, and Messrs. Cook & Son's representative proved the most gallant of hosts. As a matter of fact, the number of dances that he enjoyed with his charming guest was so many that it led Mrs. Hopkins, the Consul's wife to remark, "How very attentive young Mr. Davidson seems to be to Miss Waltham!"

While the merry couples were gliding over the polished floor of the hotel ball-room, to the music of the Maundy hand, two officers of the Municipal Police met each other just in front of the British Consulate. "Is that you, Dave?" asked the one.

"Right you are, Pete," was the responsive salute of the other.

"What are you standing here alone for, looking up at the sky?"

"Oh, I was just trying to find where that pounding is going on—didn't you hear it?"

"No, what pounding?"

"Sounds to me as if a chap was hammering somewhere—there it goes again! Listen! Tap! tap! tap! came out of the sky as he spoke and both the men stopped and tried to peer through the fog. "Can't be any fool up on top of the flag-pole there, eh?"

"Flag-pole? Nonsense! I'll tell you what it is, old man, it's just the halyards a-lapping against the top, there, that's all. They're put in some new ones for the flag-raising to-morrow, and they left them loose."

(Alas!) It muttered as it picked itself together, "Tung-Lai! Tung-Lai!" (Painful! Painful!) Then, crouching along and tossing into the air a handful of paper "joss-money" to propitiate the hungry spirits hovering near, it slunk away into the darkness and the fog. Just as it was about to disappear it turned suddenly around and shaking its fist at the flag-staff, exclaimed with a curse, "Yang-jin-lung-poo-wang!" (The ocean-man's wheel shall not revolve!)

Once safely away, the human bundle passed along the Bund until it reached the bridge leading to the French Concession and turning sharply to the right hurried along the banks of the canal, past the long rows of boat-men's tea-houses and opium-joints, and coming at last to a narrow and very crooked alley paused to wait for its companions. Two figures approached from the same direction. They paused for a moment as if in doubt and then waving their left arms three times in a circle in the air, making some cryptic sign of recognition; they passed along in single file until they came to an ancient gate-way and pushing aside a swinging board, mounted in turn a narrow ladder into a dimly lighted garret.

"Too-tek-ting-how," Yang-jin-lung-poo-wang! (The deed is well done! The ocean-man's wheel shall not revolve!) said the bundle, who seemed to be the leader, who spoke in a low, hoarse voice.

"Wang-poo-tok! Tal-ming-yui-so!" (Ten thousand times correct! The august command has been obeyed!) replied the other two, again making the sacred circle in the air.

The Shanghai Daily News of the date of November 12th, contained the following article: "UNFORTUNATE ANTI-FOREIGN INCIDENT

"We are very sorry to have to record another of those regrettable incidents, which in the nature of anti-foreign demonstrations try to stir up the very worst type of race prejudice in the Settlement."

"Yesterday noon, at the dedication of the new Municipal Flag-staff, just as the blue-jackets from the British and American navies were starting to raise the colors, it was discovered that some miscreant had secretly climbed the staff and had driven a number of wooden wedges in and around the block at the top, so as to make it impossible for the halyards to pass over the wheel."

"This most embarrassing occurrence—causing all the Europeans present to 'lose face' in the eyes of the large crowd of Chinese outside the enclosure—was most happily relieved by the prompt action of Captain Arthur of the U. S. S. 'Detroit.' Turning to Sir Worthington Johnson, who was acting as Master of ceremonies, he said, 'Just ask the band to play a lively tune or two, and my boys will fix that for you in a jiffy.' Then, ordering two of his sailors to jump aboard the tug waiting at the jetty, he added, 'Get a hammer and some tools out of the engine-room there, and up to the top you go and loosen that block!'

"Aye, aye, Sir!" was the immediate response, and in another moment they had climbed the staff with the agility of monkeys, driven out the wedges, and enabled the waiting comrades below to haul the colors to the top. As they did so, the volunteers fired the usual salute, and the ceremonies were concluded without any further incident to mar a very pleasant occasion."

"Neither the Consul nor the Police can find any motive for the act of this miscreant, but the prestige of the entire European community demands the most searching investigation, and the infliction of a penalty which will thoroughly restore our 'lost face' in the eyes of the natives."

"And just what do they mean by this 'losing of face'?" inquired Miss Waltham of Mr. Davidson, as he joined her and her mother in the hotel lobby to plan for the day's round of shopping.

"Oh, that's a Chinese expression which has worked its way into pidgin-English all up and down the Coast. It means to take away the standing of a superior in the presence of an inferior, and it is something about which they seem to be abnormally sensitive. For instance, if you have a house-boy and a cook, and you scold or rebuke the boy in the presence of the cook, the cook will immediately tell you that you have taken away the top, there, that's all. They're put in some new ones for the flag-raising to-morrow, and they left them loose."

"Well, I guess you're right," remarked the observing Dave, satisfied with his brother Pete's explanation. "Anyhow, it's so thick you couldn't see half way up the pole if you wanted to."

The two officers saluted and passed on their respective beats and the Municipal flag-staff was left alone again in the mist. When the sound of their retreating feet steps had died away and all was silent as the grave, a dark shadow slid down the halyards and fell in a bundle on the ground. After a moment or two of silent waiting, the bundle began to move and materialized into a human being; that it was only an accident or "Hoy-Yak! Hoy-Yak!" (Alas!)

"That wouldn't make any difference at all to the Celestial mind, which sees only results and never looks at causes."

"Who do you suppose could have done it?"

"Nobody knows, yet, but of course they suspect it was some native who had a grudge against the Municipal Council, perhaps some one whom the police had arrested and jailed."

"And do you think they will find him?"

"It isn't a case of think, Miss Waltham," replied her escort, as he assisted her into her jin-rik-sha. "It's a case of absolutely 'must!'"

"Just one moment, please—" as the coolie started to pick up the shafts, "I'm wondering whether this little piece of yellow paper in my purse here could be of any help, you see it has several Chinese characters on it. I haven't the slightest idea what it is, but it fluttered down right into my hand yesterday, when the sailors loosed the ropes, and I just folded it up and put it away out of curiosity."

Mr. Davidson took the paper and opening it, said to his native guide, "Ah, Tlek, how fashion this talker!"

"Him talker foreign man wheeler no can go 'round," was the immediate reply, as the almond eyes roamed over the paper.

"Rather interesting, that! By Jove, I think, if you don't mind, I'll just keep that for Inspector Matthews."

"Well, Toby my boy," remarked Inspector Matthews to his deputy, Tobias Sanderson, as they sat together in the inner office at Headquarters, "are we going to such thought as 'blocking the wheels of progress.'"

5th. In each and every case a strip of yellow paper (the old Imperial and anti-foreign color) was intentionally left behind and bore the words in classic characters, 'The foreigner's wheel shall not revolve!'"

6th. A careful comparison of these papers, (made by Wang Foo with a magnifying glass as he received them from Inspector Matthews' hands) convinced everyone that they were written by the same individual.

As no one of the persons present could recall any recent case of race-feeling that had been important enough to attract the public attention, they were entirely at a loss to account for the supposed spirit of revenge, which they at first thought must have been the cause of the attacks and therefore they were reluctantly obliged to view them in the more serious light of anti-foreign warnings or threats.

"Inspector, it really resolves itself into three questions," remarked Wang Foo as he bade him good-night.

"And what might those be, Mr. Wang?"

"First, who are the villains?"

"Second, what was their motive?"

"And Third, why did they carry it out in this very eccentric way?"

"Quite right, Sir, but to my mind there is another very important little question that precedes these—"

"How and where are we going to get our hands on them? If we can only once get them into our clutches and lock them behind the bars, then perhaps they will be willing to tell us some of these answers themselves."

"Hardly," replied the great Detective, "my experience with Chinese prisoners is that they are not very communicative, except under the kind of gentle pressure which you object to—"

"You mean torture, of course?"

"I certainly do," was the calm but very decided answer.

"When shall we have the pleasure of seeing you at Headquarters, Mr. Wang?"

"When I am ready with the three answers—that may be one week, or two, or possibly three. To be perfectly fair and liberal, I will ask the privilege of taking a week's holiday for each question. Do you honestly think that is too long?"

"Not for a man that does his work as thoroughly as you do, Sir; good-night!"

In his little upper room at the basket-maker's home in the Peacock Alley, Wang Foo lay stretched out on the bed of cocoon matting.

"Dear me, it is getting late," he said to himself as he drew out his watch. "It is almost time for me to go out on my nightly wheel-hunt. Let me see, what day is it to-day? The twenty-ninth of the moon—glancing up at the red-paper calendar on the wall—as we Chinese say in the Middle Kingdom, but it's only Thursday the seventeenth, as they reckon things in Outside Kingdoms of the Western world. Yes, this is the night my old caddy at the tea-house was to take me to the meeting of his guild. I must be off to meet him. Presto, change! as the European magicians say, no longer Mr. Wang Foo of the Red Cloud Alley, Hong Kong, but old Tak-Sui, a peddler of ladies' heels from Ningpo!"

(Note: Chinese ladies with bound feet always make and embroider their own shoes, buying the narrow wooden heels from men who hawk them through the streets.) The basket-maker's family had all retired early, so the aged peddler attracted no attention as he slipped out through the courtyard in the rear.

Hurrying down to the Tea House of the Golden Phoenix, by the side of the old City wall near the French Canal, he found the heel-peddler from Hang Chow awaiting him at one of the tables.

"Very courteous and unworthy has the little one been, thus to keep his august elder brother waiting," he exclaimed in the polite language of his fathers. "Nay, nay," was the immediate and equally ceremonious reply, "unworthy I am to receive the truly august elder one. Disrespectful beyond words am I not to have the hot tea already before you. I pray you be seated."

"Unworthy, unworthy! I dare not sit until the elder-born is on the throne."

And so to make a long story short, they finally both sat down and partook of the fragrant tea and smoking pipes, then hailing a wheelbarrow, they started for the meeting of the Heel Peddlers' Guild.

What possible interest could Wang Foo have in the meeting of this kind of men, and what possible connection, if any, could it have with the special case which he was now investigating? From a direct or European standpoint, none; but from an indirect or Chinese standpoint, much. He had ascertained that the Wheel-Barrow Makers' Guild occupied the left hand side of the little temple, of which the Heel Peddlers' Guild occupied the right, and he knew that it would be very much easier for him to pass from one side of the temple to the other, than to attempt to enter directly as a visitor, of whom the priests are always suspicious. A liberal donation tossed into the copper gift-box in front of the shrine, secured the immediate favor of the aged ecclesiastic in charge, and a draught of two from a special gourd of Ningpo samshu which Wang Foo had thoughtfully brought with him, secured in addition an invitation to the secret apartments behind the altar.

He found, to his very great delight, that the priest, in charge of the two parts of the temple were twin-brothers, which made it all the easier for him to ingratiate himself into the confidence of the one on the left hand side and win was known to the faithful as "The Wheel-Barrow King."

To say that they became intimate on a short acquaintance, would be to express the new relationship in quite inadequate terms. When the great clock in the Custom House tower struck midnight, and the echo of it floated out to them across the frosty rice-fields, they were still absorbed in a game of chess, while all the rest of the temple staff were sound asleep, and the empty samshu gourd rolled at their feet on the floor.

At last the fatal moment came—the moment that Wang Foo had so carefully planned and waited for. The priest was gradually becoming drowsier and drowsier. The combination of strong tea and tobacco and samshu finally overcame him and throwing his arms and head upon the table, he fell forward in a drunken stupor. Reaching forward and gripping him with both hands by the shoulders, the Detective (who had quietly slipped a long grey beard from his sleeve and hung it over his face, covering his head at the same time with a piece of white cotton cloth) raised him up and shook him like a leaf.

"Reaching Forward and Gripping Him With Both Hands by the Shoulders, the Detective Raised Him Up and Shook Him Like a Leaf!"

IOWA FINALLY DEFEATED

After having been undefeated until the last Western Conference basketball game, Iowa lost last night to Indiana, 23 to 31.

BLAIR MEETS FIRST REVERSAL; BESTED BY WALTHERS

They all go to the well, once too often.

So it was with Nig Blair, who was soundly trounced by Al Walther, of Canton in their scheduled 12-round go in Zanesville Monday night. Unable to toe the scratch in the seventh round, Blair's manager tossed a towel in the ring, giving the fight to Walther through technical knockout, the first Blair has ever suffered, in fact it was his first reversal in the ring.

The chief reason why he did not win was due to the fact that he cannot make 155 pounds. He has grown too heavy to make this weight and he was in a weakened condition last night as a result of trying to make it. Several Turkish ladies, which he had in Columbus, Sunday, failed to reduce his weight and served to sap his strength. Blair is now around the 140 mark or better, and it was suicide to meet a boy as tough as Walther and then try to make 155. But they all make mistakes and possibly Blair will profit by this.

Walther won all the way last night, having Blair in trouble in the third and fourth rounds by severe blows to the head. Walther has a longer reach than the local boy and he had no trouble penetrating Blair's defense. However, it was a real fight while it lasted, as Blair fought viciously all the way and tried hard to slip over a sleep-producing punch, but Walther, who has met all the top-notchers beat him to it.

Shifty Dando, another Portsmouth fighter, was awarded the decision over Joe Dillon of Columbus, in an eight round go.

McInnes Will Play

In National League

MONTGOMERY, ALA., March 6.—Stuffy McInnes, recently let out by Cleveland because of his salary demands, will not be with the Philadelphia Athletics this year. Connie Mack announced today that he had a telegram from the veteran first baseman saying that he had almost come to terms with a National League club. This club probably is either the Boston Braves or Brooklyn, with the odds in favor of the former. Columbus and Baltimore also sought his services.

WILLARD GETS TRAINING

QUARTERS IN MISSOURI

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, MO., March 6.—Training quarters to be used by Jess Willard, former world champion heavyweight boxer, for his coming bout with Floyd Johnson, in New York, May 12, were obtained here today.

Willard will appear in an exhibition match in Kansas City tomorrow night and then come here for a strenuous training period, according to a message received from Ray Archer, his manager.

P. H. S. AT CHILLICOTHE FRIDAY

Friday night at Chillicothe, P. H. S. closes their 1923 season. The P. H. S. quietly played Chillicothe here as their first game of the season and won a hard battle by a narrow margin.

Chillicothe said then that revenge would be sweet when the Red and Blue visit Ross county, but the locals now believe there will be a different story to relate. The P. H. S. lads have developed into a much better team since the first game of the season while the Chillicothe five has been shattered. The locals will be given stiff workouts each afternoon this week by Coach Wadner. Monk who is still suffering with an injured knee is having it treated and hopes to be able to get into the last game. The locals will probably make the trip in automobiles and several automobiles of local students will accompany them to whom things up for P. H. S.

Ball Clubs May Cut Out War Tax

BY GEORGE CHADWICK

NEW YORK, March 6.—It is stated that the Chicago National League club will take up the tax assessed against an admission ticket and that in the future the man who pays a dollar to see a baseball game at Chicago will not be asked to make it $1.10, thus bearing the burden of federal maintenance which tolls not neither does it spin.

The Chicago Nationals are the first baseball club of any consequence and they may be the first sporting organization of great consequence to bring the price of admission to the first face value of the coin paid for admission.

Baseball men of prominence and men of prominence in games, that are classified as sport, both indoor and out, have been asked if this undertaking of the Chicago club is the forerunner of lower admission at ball games and others.

It is almost impossible to get any of them to stand for a market quotation. Whatever they may feel individually, they are coo about seeking publicity, fearing that they may put their feet into the frozen pudding, as it were, which would be embarrassing beyond measure to them and probably ruin the pudding for life.

There are men who have a part in the management of ball clubs who within the past three years have expressed themselves as thinking that the tariff is too high. Yet not one of them has refused to take his share of the receipts of a large afternoon at the Polo Grounds in New York City, for instance, or at the South Side park in Chicago. Their principles may be as lofty as the last lightning rod on the Woolworth building, but they can not in justice to their own ideals of sportsmanship permit the New York clubs to hog any more than they have been converting into sausage in the past. They feel that they owe it to their patrons at home to take something out of New York once in a while if the gun men may obligingly overlook him.

PIRATES GET AWAY

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 6.—The advance forces of the Pittsburgh National League Baseball club, made up of better men, left here last night to begin the spring training grind at Hot Springs, Arkansas.

They were led by Manager Bill McKechnie, who was optimistic and real had back the situation looks good," said the pilot.

McKechnie said he was pleased to learn that a friend of Walter Schmidt, veteran catcher, had been advised that Schmidt "may report" at Hot Springs with the other players next week. He said he knew nothing officially about it. Schmidt has not signed a 1923 contract.

LIVELY BALL MAY BE SLOWED UP
NEW YORK, March 6.—Will the baseball be as lively this year as last? Despite the fact that the scheme for zoning home runs by increasing the regulation distances to 300 feet failed, it is said that most of the club owners are agreed that the home run is becoming too common.

The liveliness of the baseball is made possible by the material used in the production of same, and the manner in which the yarn is wound around the cork center.

No change has been made in the cork center. It is identically the same as when home runs were rare. The lively ball has been made possible by far better yarn and workmanship.

It would be an easy matter to tone down the ball by simply winding the yarn a trifle more loosely or cutting down on the quality of the yarn.

It is said that the home-run feature was taken up at both major league meetings. The feeling was that it should be curtailed.

It won't be very long now before it will be possible to judge as to the liveliness of the ball. Major league pitchers are hoping the report of slowing it up is true.

WILDE MAY ACCEPT
NEW YORK, March 6. (By the Associated Press.)—There was some skepticism in sporting circles today over the prospect of Johnny Wilde leaving his home in England to come to this country and defend his title as world's champion flyweight against Panchito Villa, the little Filipino who lost the American title in the division to Frankie Genaro, of New York, here last week.

While there was some doubt expressed over the success of promoter Tom O'Rourke, who announced that he had received a cable from the world's champion accepting terms for a bout with Villa on June 16, there was a general hope that Wilde would come.

HOT SPRINGS, ARK., March 6.—Rain which kept Babe Ruth indoors all of yesterday again early today threatened to keep the restless bantam peering wistfully from his window out upon a dreary world.

Fully recovered from the attack of "flu" which sent the big batsman to bed last Friday, Ruth was yet obedient to the instructions of his careful physician and avoided any exposure.

He waited in poorly concealed impatience for Wednesday when the doctor had said he may leave to join his team mates in New Orleans.

CRAZY, MAYBE; WHAT OF IT

NORMAL and average, strictly defined, are not synonymous. But in common usage they mean the same thing. When therefore, a Princeton professor, presumably recognized as an authority in his line, makes public assertion that out of 105,000,000 persons in the United States, "statistics show that 45,000,000 are subnormal and would never have the mentality of a child of 13; another 15,000,000 are feeble minded and their brain power forever would be that of a child of 8," he creates confusion in the popular mind and excites derision as well. His opinion will not be respected more than that of the Indiana state board of health head who is quoted as saying the American people are going crazy so fast all will be imbeciles or maniacs a century hence.

The professor means standard or typical when he says normal, but what is the standard mental state of Americans? Who decided and how? It must have been arrived at by some process of comparisons. This should make average an important factor. If 60,000,000 are permanently "subnormal or imbecile," gauged by the professor's standard, is it not possible he is vainly clinging to the impossible, and his opinion therefore is worthless?

Most mortals admit the rest are crazy or near it; yet get along pretty well. Probably future generations will be no worse off.

THE OTHER SIDE

ENGLAND'S "new poor" have appealed for a certain sympathy because high taxes and the cost of maintaining numerous great houses have compelled many to sell estates which had been handed down through many generations. Famous manors have gone under the auctioneer's hammer because the owners could not endure the expense of keeping them. Those suffering thus have felt themselves subjected to great hardships. It is not agreeable to give up to strangers ancestral acres, but what else can one do under compelling circumstances?

For many not in the "new poor" class the situation has its brighter side. The placing on the market of great estates has provided the opportunity for many to acquire a bit of land where heretofore it was impossible. It is indicated that the tenant farmers are availing themselves of the opportunity. And this should result in benefit to the agriculture of England. A land-owning farmer is the best kind of a farmer. Thus those who have been able to purchase a few acres from the brokenup estates fail to see wherein the situation is a bad one—for themselves. The ownership of land is widened and it will be to the benefit of the country at large.

GOOD OLD POUND STERLING

ONE of the most important signs of international improvement is the steady advance toward par of sterling exchange. England is rapidly re-establishing her monetary system. Its progress toward normalcy, after the disruptive effects of the tremendous destruction of life and property during the World War, is one of the vitally encouraging signs of the times.

The chief reason for the rehabilitation of the sterling exchange market is the determination of British financiers and government officials to meet the nation's obligations, and to refrain from issuing depreciated paper money in the reckless fashion of Germany, which has flooded that country and other countries which have speculated in marks until the total of this currency in circulation, at the time that last weekly report was published by the Imperial Bank of Germany, reached the almost unbelievable volume of 2,703,794,678,000 marks. The agreement of the British cabinet to the American terms for the settlement of the debt due the United States from Great Britain and the approval by the American congress of the results of the negotiations, were important factors in strengthening the position of sterling exchange in the money markets of the world.

Its immediate effects, aside from the confidence it gives that sound money ideas are to prevail, may be over-emphasized because the annual payments for the next ten years are relatively small, approximating $160,000,000. But the indirect effects—what one may call the psychological results—are certain to be very great.

Spring millinery always anticipates the birds in arrival. The optimistic season is here when the calendar heading reads "March."

To most persons living within their means is entirely too tame an existence.

Perhaps it was a Mormon "revelation" that caused Utah to forbid smoking in public.

New York-Day-By-Day

BY O. O. MCINTIRE

NEW YORK, March 6.—Some rare birds are beating their wings against Parnassus these days. A new poetry craze has struck Manhattan. And you'd be surprised! Among the Algonquin lunch-hounds there is great rolling of eyes and quick intakes of breath over this:
O O O that Shakespearean flag—
O O O that Shakespearean flag—
It's so elegant.
So intelligent.

Remain seated please. That actually appeared in the highest brow Journal in town and won a stick of editorial praise in the bargain. The poems are a part of a book of poems recently published.

And listen to this one:
No, Albert's coming back, make yourself a bit smart:
He'll want to know what you done with that money he gave you To get yourself some teeth. He did; I was there.
You have them all out, Lil, and get a nice set.

Don't care for that one? O, well, certainly this one will please. (Don't punctuate, printer; the poet says that spoils it). Here goes:
Twit, twit twit
Jug jug jug jug jug
So rudely forced.
Tereu!

The perpetrators are actually being lionized by the young intellectuals and the irritating group of boy book reviewers. And they take themselves very, very seriously. The tragedy of it is that there are many hardworking and able poets living on crusts down in The Square. Of course the poems may be a hoax, but you can't make the young intellectuals believe it.

An idea of traffic rush on Fifth Avenue is gained by a count of automobiles passing the traffic tower at Forty-Second street and Fifth Avenue one day last week. Between the hours of 7 a. m. and 7 p. m. 21,872 cars passed the tower. This is not including the heavy rush around 8 and after 11, to and from the theatres.

There is a sort of new feminist movement that is noticeable in the hotel cafes and supper clubs these days. Scores of girls are eschewing masculine society and nocking by themselves. It is not at all unusual to see a group of fair ones dining together at such places as the Club Royale and Palais-Royal. The other night I saw a party of six ladies.

They came without male hindrance and left in the same fashion.
The young cake-eaters are raising goatees these days. Scores of them, with wisps of down on their under-lip, are seen in the tea rooms. It gives them that old and devil-may-care look, and what they desire most in life is to look as though they were hardened men of the world.

There must have been some sort of complex that inspired the act of an elderly gentleman riding northward on Park Avenue in a limousine. He megaphoned to the driver to stop and, stepping out carefully, placed his high silk hat on top of a snow drift. He then waved his hand to the driver and was rushed away. In a half hour a crowd of school boys were pelting the hat with snow-balls. One wonders if he just wanted to give the youngsters a good time. (Copyright 1923, By The McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Where Ignorance Is Bliss
A visitor to Florida asked a negro if he knew of a bathing place free from alligators. The negro took him to a nearby spot and the visitor enjoyed his bath tremendously, staying in a half hour or more. After he came out of the water he asked:
"How is it that there are no alligators here? Everywhere else I have tried to bathe the alligators have been too thick."
"Well, there's a reason, boss: Dese here alligators done been all scared away by the sharks."—Judge.

Too Funny
A floor manager of a certain big department store in a Western city recently lost his place because of his inability to refrain from indulging in witcidisms at the expense of customers.

One day there rushed up to him a fat woman, who had lost her husband in the store, and was much out of breath by reason of her unavail-able search for him.
"I am looking for a small man with one eye."
"Well, madam," suggested the floor man, "if he is a very small man, perhaps you had better use both eyes."

AINT IT A GRAND AND GLORIOUS FEELING—BY BRIGGS

Wise Boy
"Now, boys, I have a few questions to ask in regard to fractions," said the teacher. "Suppose I have a piece of beefsteak and cut it in 10 pieces, what would those pieces be called?"
"Sixteenths," answered one boy, after meditating a moment.
"Correct. And when the sixteenths were cut in half, what would they be?"
"There was silence in the class, but presently a little boy at the bottom put up his hand. "Do you know, Johnny?"
"Hash!" answered Johnny confidently. —Los Angeles Times.
